Artist Statement: Paul Martin is a visual artist, writer, inventor, and investor living in San Antonio, Texas. He started painting in college, had his first art show in New York City in 1985, and has lived and traveled all around the world. Paul takes a “psychic automatic” approach to creating art—meaning that he usually begins with a completely open mind as to where his ideas will go. A lover of creativity and curious about everything, Paul’s activities outside of painting run the gamut from service in the military, managing investment portfolios, inventing medical devices, acting in movies, running for political office, serving on boards, to publishing a book with his brother. In keeping with the psychic automatic approach of creating something from nothing, and being in alignment with the continual expansion of the universe, the MultiColoredUniverses collection has expanded from two dimensional canvases to three dimensional canvases, such as cubes and pyramids, and continues to evolve into fashion art, such as pocket squares, scarves, neckties and bow ties."
